

so...what exactly is
"ALOHA FORMAL" ATTIRE?

A New Year's Eve cheat sheet

1 TAKE YOUR TUX
TO THE TROPICS

We think a Hawaiian shirt works with everything—even your super-trad tuxedo. It's this simple: Sub your white tux shirt for a bright tropical one. Wear a bow tie...or don't. Lose the socks. Slip on a pair of sneakers. Now toast 2019 in Rat Pack-worthy Aloha style.

OWN YOUR ISLAND MOMENT 2

Just because you're channeling a more laid-back vibe doesn't mean you can't make a dramatic entrance. Maximize your moment with a drapey floral dress in a darker base color, like the midnight blue here. Think of it as an Aloha Formal alternative to the little black party dress.

3 KEEP THE BLACK,
LOSE THE TIE

To us, "Black Tie" is, well...open to interpretation. (Sometimes we ignore the "tie" part.) Try a black camp-collar shirt—untucked!—over a pair of Aloha-essential black linen pants. Leather loafers, no socks. (Sensing a theme here?) It's Tommy Bahama meets the Man in Black. Very rock-'n'-roll. Very Seattle.

THINK OUTSIDE THE DRESS 4

What says "Aloha Formal" more than something soft and subdued paired with something wild and surprising?

Like a luxe cashmere sweater worn with wide-leg, floral-print pants.

Add a statement necklace and some ultra-chic shoes you can dance in and you're ready to destroy '19, island-style.
